Recent Projects:

Web Development Portfolio Website – A front-end website showcasing my work as a developer. The page has a fun, creative feel to it with a sleek layout. The user is able to download my resume with the push of a button and navigate the page via jumping links and a fun custom scrollbar.

Movie Overview – This is a recreation of my project with ILF, created to be put in my online portfolio. The site features a media slider which, on page load, displays the top 20 movies of the year. It also includes a search option so the user can search whatever movie they want out of 650,000, and the results are displayed in the slider. The main programming feature with this website was working with client side API's. This site calls from multiple API's to display the necessary information.

Ayesha Highlights – A personal project which aims to advertise Ayesha Highlights using lots of images and an eye-catching layout to entice the user. The websites challenge was to organize the given information into a complex layout that is fun to scroll through.

Current Projects:

Partner Media Player, ILF – A freelance project for Interactive Life Forms, LLC which displays a media slider full of tiles displaying images related to each partnered streaming site. On click the main display plays a quick trailer from the target partner, complete with links to the official site and the respective logos. The site also contains a login function, and a preference popup which saves the users selected preference/s as a cookie.
